

The article has been improved thoroughly and it is worthy to be published now. The depth-integrated numerical model coupled with basal entrainment model has a guiding significance to debris flow modeling. The computational framework and code is believed to be helpful for researchers in this field.