> Although a little over-detailed

We believe that by addressing the comments of reviewer #1 about the user evaluation the paper should feel less overdetailed: the "ease of extension" result has been shortened and its associated plot has been deleted. The HPC section has been removed.

> apparent typing and reference citing mistakes

This has been fixed as mentioned by the reviewer

> Line 33: delete the comma [...]

Regarding the references formatting, this was actually introduced by the editing as performed by the journal's staff. So, could the editor confirm that we should change this formatting?
