Thanks to the reviewers for having provided clear and constructive reviews, and to the authors for having produced a worthwhile and well organized contribution that has made the review process simple.

I concur with the comments of both reviewers both as to the overall contribution of the manuscript and the added value of their suggestions, and note the first review comments have already been well addressed. I suggest the authors also address the second reviewer's minor suggestions at which point I expect the manuscript to be ready or near-ready for publication.
