Thank you for your comments, Eli. We have taken your feedback on board and would like to give a brief response before all reviews on the manuscript have been received.

The paper was submitted as a development and technical paper and therefore, is deliberately light on the results. However, we fully appreciate the need to provide a greater demonstration of what the new CEM2D is capable of and we will look to make changes in the paper to this effect.

Thank you again for your comments, Chloe
