

Dear Chris Folberth,

thank you for the attentive care to the open data policy, this is highly appreciated. We realized that the github repository containing the scripts to reproduce the data from the case study Rana et al. (2021) had wrong permission settings and was thus not public. This has been solved. In addition, we uploaded the hazard data to the ETH research collection. The text for the data and code availability has been updated accordingly.

We hope the manuscript now fulfills all requirements.

Kind regards,
Chahan Kropf and co-authors.
